Off-campus access to resources

IMPORTANT:

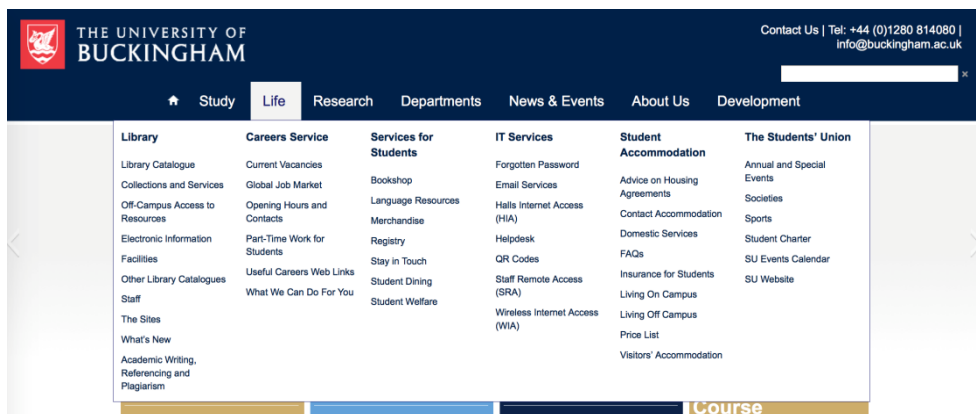

Some of the links to online resources on our website are configured for users who are working on campus (i.e. staff and students using a University of Buckingham computer in a classroom or library).

If you are working away from campus, or are using the University's WiFi, then this guide will help you access our resources.

1. Which links to use:

The Library's off-campus access webpage contains links to all our resources which are configured for users who are not using a University of Buckingham computer. To find the webpage either:

A. Visit the University of Buckingham website and select Life from the navigation bar at the top of the page. A menu will appear – select Off-campus access to resources from the menu to go straight to the page.

Or B. Visit the Library homepage using the quick links at the bottom of any University of Buckingham webpage and click on the Off-campus access to resources link approximately half way down the page.

Powered by OpenAthens LA 2.3

If you do not see a login screen that looks like the image above then retrace your steps to check you are using the correct links for your resource.

Your login:

Your login is the same as your standard University Login, i.e. the username and password for your email account, Moodle, and the University Computer network. Therefore your username will usually be your student ID number and your password will be the one issued to you by the IT department when you joined (if you changed this to a different password then use the new one instead).

Troubleshooting:

If you cannot log in due to a username or password error contact the University IT department to check you are using the correct login details.
