4.6 STUDENT ADMISSIONS

- I. Admissions requirements for collaborative provision must conform to the University's general admissions requirements (including all relevant English language requirements and any programme specific requirements approved through validation). The selection and admission of students is undertaken by the collaborative partner institutions using the criteria set out by the University and as stated in the programme handbook as approved at validation (or later). Where appropriate this includes the arrangements for admission of students using accreditation of prior certificated or experiential learning. Admissions processes and records at partner institutions are subject to audit at the discretion of the University.

- II. Programmes are subject to minimum numbers as specified in the Affiliation Agreement. Individual taught modules will not normally be allowed to run with less than 6 students attending, unless special permission has been granted by the University of Buckingham.
